KODY QR - THE-QRCODE-GENERATOR.COM/

The screenshot displays the website 'the-qr-code-generator.com'. The page features a green header with the title 'QR Code Generator powered by beaconstac'. A navigation menu includes options for URL, MULTI-URL, FREE TEXT (which is selected), CONTACT, PDF, APP, EMAIL, and PHONE. On the left, there is a sidebar with a 'Sign in' button and a 'QR Code' section containing 'Generate Static QR Code' and 'Scan Using your webcam'. Below this are links for 'About', 'What's a QR Code?', 'Privacy', 'Terms of use', and 'Imprint'. The main content area has a text input field labeled 'Enter text to share here'. To the right, the 'Static QR Code' section is active, showing a preview of a QR code with a purple and white pixelated pattern. Below the preview is a gallery of various QR code styles, including standard black and white, colorful, and branded versions. A green plus icon is located in the bottom right corner of the interface.

STUDIO.CODE.ORG – PROSTE KODOWANIE

The screenshot displays the Studio Code Org interface for a coding lesson. The browser address bar shows the URL `studio.code.org/s/frozen/lessons/1/levels/6`. The page title is "Code with Anna and Elsa" and the progress indicator shows level 6 out of 6, with the status "I finished!".

Instructions: Can you create a snowflake using the "Repeat" block to make a square 10 times, and the "Turn" block to turn 36 degrees between each square?

Workspace: 6 / 6 blocks

Code Blocks:

when run
  repeat 10 times
    do
      repeat 4 times
        do
          move forward by 100 pixels
          turn right by 90 degrees
        do
          turn right by 36 degrees
```

Block Palette:

- repeat ??? times
- do
- move forward by 100 pixels
- turn right by ??? degrees

Chapter 3: The Rocky Planets Mercury

"Good thinking Pila. Maybe that means that it's time to move on, after all we still have a lot more stops to go," said Shammy.

"All right, Shammy," the kids said. "Wait! Before we leave I just wish we could take a picture," Pila said with a sigh.

"Why can't we?" Shammy asked. Now, he didn't need a bubble like Pila and Dimo so he came over to Pila and pulled out a camera—from behind her ear! Pila gasped, then giggled.

"Good thinking Pila, now we can remember this trip forever," Dimo said. So Pila took her picture, the kids nodded to Shammy, and he snapped his fingers and WHOOSH! They were off to Mercury!

"Here we are, Mercury," said Shammy.

"It's so close to the sun, I bet it's the hottest planet ever!" said Dimo.

"Actually Dimo," Pila commented, "Mercury isn't the hottest planet."

"It isn't? Then what is?" Dimo and Shammy asked at the same time.

"I'll show you when we get there!" Pila replied mischievously.

"Hey, what's that hole in the ground?" Shammy asked. The kids looked where he was pointing.

"That's not a hole Shammy, that is a crater," Dimo explained.

"That crater is called the Caloris Basin to be exact," Pila added. "I wonder how Mercury got its name?" she wondered out loud.
